WEDNESDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER &

WHEN ARE WOMEN LOVELY ?- Lovelines in women, though it may vary in its character and manifestations at different periods of life, is not the property of youth only. There is a great and undeniable charm in a fresh beauty of eighteen, to which inexperience and early ro mince leads, perhaps, additional fascination. A pretty girl of that age, who has been uptouched by care, and who knows of the world through imagination only, is a very delightful chjeet; and many men wish they might take captive her first affections. Between eighteen and twenty two the changes in a girl, so far as the chaims of her person go, are not likely to be great; but in that time, by longer intercourse with society, and by natural development, she may get more companionable for men of maturity, and her carriage and self control become better and greater. These are important years in a young woman's life, the years during which in our climate the majority of the sex are married. And yet, from twenty one to twenty five or twenty six a maiden may, and generally doce, still further advance in attractiveness, and add to the store of her charms. She is still young, but she has outlived some of the youth ful faccies, and feels some of the dignity of womanhood. No better ages than these in a maiden's life, and never is she levelier. But why stop at twenty six? But fairer women are to be found than many of those between twenty six and thirty, sad even older? Girls of cighteen may look on them as unsought old maids, and yet they are in their womanly pride and may cipture hearts that have been steeled against girlish lessinations. Oftentimes they make the best of wives, and men fied a to'ace and compariouship in their society which im' majurity expnot give. They have learned the less no by longer contact with the world, while
